This week, the doctor wants to make sure you're getting enough variety in your diet. She's got a hodgepodge of events for you, from an artistic walk to an artists' dialogue to an artist's reading, plus a handful of openings. In the museums, see John Baldessari and R. H. Quayman discuss Jack Goldstein or Claes Oldenburg read from his writings. In the galleries, visit openings at Klaus von Nichtssagend, EFA Project Space, Microscope Gallery, and Flux Factory. Out in the world, go on an Elastic City walk or have happy hour drinks in Green-Wood Cemetery.

Summer may finally be here, but a little heat never slowed the art world down.

Empathy Corporation

When: Opens Thursday, June 27, 6–8:30 pm

Where: Elizabeth Foundation for the Arts (EFA) Project Space (323 West 39th Street, 2nd floor, Port Authority, Manhattan)

The Hive is a partnership between EFA Project Space and arts funding org A Blade of Grass, and its latest manifestation is Empathy Corporation, an exhibition involving three performative projects that focus on participation and the integration of art and life. Coming together for this show as a team of artistic consultants of a sort, the projects are the “Poets’ Security Force,” “I and We: Collective Movement Workshop For Beginners,” and “MyNerva: The Transmigration of the Cubicle.” You can meet the artists and learn more at the opening on Thursday night, after which check the schedule to find out about workshops, sessions, and events.
